

Recognized for Excellence

UMass Chan Medical School appears on Forbes' 2021 edition of its America's Best Employers by State list. Forbes has ranked the Medical School No. 39 among Massachusetts employers. Forbes partnered with Statista Inc., the statistics portal and industry ranking provider, to develop lists for all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Despite being among the hardest hit by the pandemic, employers in health care, education and retail dominated the rankings, accounting for 41 percent of the 2021 list, up from 38 percent last year.

Click here for more details.

UMass Chan Medical School ranks 10th nationwide in primary care among 191 medical and osteopathic schools surveyed by U.S. News & World Report for its annual rankings of the best graduate schools.

The 2022 U.S. News report also marks a rise for UMass Chan in research, ranking 45th, up two spots from previous ranking.

Click here for more details.

UMass Chan Medical School was named one of the Top Employers for 2021 by DiversityJobs.com for our dedication and commitment to building a diverse workforce and culture.

To offer the best education and research opportunities, UMass Chan recruits the best faculty and staff to help realize the UMass Chan mission.

Click here for more details.